HOLBROOK ROTARY ART SHOW

Albury artist Meg Sprouster will exhibit her work as guest artist at the Rotary Art Show to be staged at the Holbrook Hall from opening night on Friday October 11 to Saturday October 19.

For the first time in decades, there will be a $500 open prize for artists participating in the exhibition. Based on previous shows, organisers are expecting to attract more than 300 entries from an estimated 80 artists from around the region, including northern Victoria and southern NSW.

Meg showcases her paintings in her own home. She understands that light and composition play important roles in painting landscapes, birds, and abstract works but says it makes sense to talk about the feel of a place and see it as special.

Meg knew from an early age – seven or eight that she wanted to be an artist. Walking along the road she saw some clay and understood she could make a pot from this material found in the landscape. After loving art in primary school, she studied more academic subjects at high school, then took up art again at teacher's college where she worked in water colours, oils and screen printing.

"I loved water colour, but it is a more thoughtful and think ahead medium and I'm more expressive," she explained.

It wasn't until Meg was 50 that her mind was opened to the freedom of acrylic paint. She attended a workshop organised by the Albury Wodonga Art Society (AWAS).

"I learnt how to use acrylics and it was like being let out of gaol, I took to it like a duck to water.

"I am more of an expressionist and found acrylic paint is a medium that is spontaneous and energetic and suits my personality," she said.

In Meg's 30 years of teaching she always involved writers, illustrators and artists.

"I always focussed on reading and maths and taught through drawing; all writing needs to make sense with an expectation of what is coming next," she explained.

A career highlight was working with world famous Australian artist Arthur Boyd and 250 children gifted in art, just outside his home near Nowra. "What was remarkable was how he used his hands to paint," she said.

Meg achieved Certificate 3 and 4 and a Diploma of Visual Arts at TAFE between 2009 and 2013. She has had solo exhibitions in Sydney and MAMA (Murray Art Museum Albury); participated in three group exhibitions with IMART Collective in Chiltern and Albury as well as exhibitions with TAFE, AWAS and GIGS Gallery.

As well as doing her own work she and a few local artists work with a group of vision impaired artists. "We are an amazing team, the best team I've worked with and we are working on a 2020 exhibition of Portraits with the theme Famous Fakes to raise funds for the local Sanctuary Group Supporting New Settlers," Meg said.

School holidays began with a performance of The Sleeping Beauty in story time format by a small contingent from the Allegro Ballet School from Wagga.

Lots of excited little people came to see the ballet and thoroughly enjoyed it. One of the highlights came at the end when Miss Anne and the dancers showed the children how to curtsy, point and move their wings (arms) like a bird. Even the smallest audience member, Hazel, enjoyed the show.

POP-UP DINING & LIVE MUSIC COMING TO LANKEYS CREEK

Looking for a new type of dining and dancing experience now that the weather has warmed up? Pop-up dining is a relatively new idea that is similar to the old time barn dances some of us remember. One ticket gives you admission to a unique venue, a great band guaranteed to get you dancing, and a hearty supper you will enjoy. All you have to do is bring your own drinks and you will have a fun-filled musical experience which is not expensive.

Well known local musician Che Jepson has travelled to the NSW southern highlands to study these events. He says they are ideal for his band "Slammin' Drams", because they fit between gigs held in local pubs, and gigs that form part of a music festival. Che has teamed up with Peter Downs at the "Lost Patrol Camel Lodge" where the venue consists of retired railway carriages and marquees. Peter recently received approval from Council to hold public events.

On Saturday 2nd November, starting at 6pm, everyone is invited to 3775 Jingellic Road, Lankeys Creek. Che's band will play till around 10pm and the meal served will include pulled pork sliders, vegetarian dishes and desserts. Tea and coffee will be served but all other drinks are BYO. Tickets are essential and may be purchased for $30 from the Walwa Store, Jingellic Store or Holbrook Landcare. Book a table for 10, 6 or 2.

Who knows, maybe we will soon see a resurgence of country barn dances?

HISTORY QUIZ

Previous Quiz: Dan Morgan and the merry men of his gang are featured in 31 July 2003 Daily Advertiser. True or false?

Answer: Dan Morgan with his banjo, Noel Raynes with his guitar, and Wally Condon with the Irish drum, were members of the Tin Shed Rattlers

New Quiz: According to the Holbrook Courier, 23 March 1988, Holbrook has a Sister City, or rather a Sister Village. Where is it?

PLANT PICK PLATE

Remember the vegie and herb seeds I planted earlier to germinate, their strike rate has been fantastic.

Tomatoes varieties Mortgage and Tommy Toe, Eggplant, Cucumber and Capsicum, Butternut Pumpkin and Rockmelon.

Also herbs Dill, Basil and Coriander. My babies have enjoyed an ideal warm inside position with lots of TLC.

So when it was time to housesit for my sister in a much cooler climate I had to take them with me. Five trays of seedlings, liquid fertiliser, water sprayer and skewers for height support were all loaded into the back of my suv. My Mobile Hothouse was created. Where I go my family of seedlings go too. When the sun has been shining they soak it up outside and are growing magnificently. Soon they will be ready to give to family, friends and to plant in my sisters garden which I have been preparing.

By the time I return home the chance of frosts should have passed and the soil will be warmer. Early to mid spring is when productive gardeners are the busiest. You will find me diligently working in my vegie garden to transplant my seedlings as well as the direct sowing of carrots, beetroot, climbing beans and peas. If your winter greens are spent, remove and rejuvenate the soil ready for the new plantings. Gardeners should also plant Companion flowers to attract the pollinating insects for example lavender, calendula, fever few, borage or any of the daisy family.

All the hard work of planting the spring and future summer crops will be worth it when baskets of produce are picked and ready for the table. My Mobile Hothouse is worth trying.
Passionate gardener, June

CRACKDOWN ON DRIVERS USING MOBILE PHONES ILLEGALLY

The world's first mobile phone detection camera program will be rolled out in NSW by the end of the year. Minister for Roads Andrew Constance and Minister for Regional Roads Paul Toole said the cameras will crack down on drivers illegally using their mobile phones.

"Unfortunately some people haven't received the message and think they can continue to put the safety of themselves, their passengers and the community at risk without consequence," Mr Constance said.

"There is strong community support for more enforcement to stop illegal mobile phone use with 80 per cent of people we surveyed supporting use of the mobile phone detection cameras."

The program will operate in warning letter mode for the first three months to reinforce the 'get your hand off it' message. If you offend after that, you'll cop a $344 fine and five demerit points.

"The decision to pick up your phone can have fatal consequences. It doesn't matter whether you're driving on a busy city motorway or on an isolated road in the bush – there's just no excuse for using your phone illegally," Mr Toole said.

"When you drive while using a phone, your attention is not on the road, on other cars, pedestrians, or on other dangers and it poses a risk to everyone who uses the road," Mr Corboy said.

"There is simply no excuse for it."

CHANGES TO THE NSW ROAD RULES

The trial of a rule that required motorists to slow down to 40kph when passing stationary emergency vehicles with flashing blue or red lights has been completed and changes will be made to the road rule as a result of a review of the 12 month trial, which included community feedback.

This rule is being changed to improve the safety of emergency services personnel, tow truck operators and breakdown assistance providers working on the road, as well as the people they are helping. The changes will also make it safer on higher speed roads where the time and distance required to reduce speed to 40kph is the greatest. The changes to the rule commenced on 26 Sept 2019.

The rule will be expanded to apply to motorists when passing stationary tow trucks and breakdown assistance vehicles displaying flashing yellow lights, in addition to emergency vehicles displaying flashing blue or red lights.

There will be changes to the requirements for motorists, depending on the speed limit of the road. On higher speed roads (speed limit of 90kph or more), motorists will be required to slow down safely to a speed that is reasonable for the circumstances. Motorists must also provide sufficient space between their vehicle and the stationary tow truck, breakdown assistance or emergency vehicle displaying flashing lights. This will include changing lanes on a multi-lane road if it is safe to do so.

On lower speed roads (speed limit of 80kph or less), motorists will continue to be required to slow to 40kph when passing stationary tow trucks, breakdown assistance or emergency vehicles displaying flashing lights.

All motorists must also give way to any person on foot in the vicinity of a stationary tow truck, breakdown assistance or emergency vehicle displaying flashing lights. Motorists must not increase their speed until they are a sufficient distance past all the vehicles and people involved.

The rule does not apply when a stationary tow truck, breakdown assistance or emergency vehicle displaying flashing lights is on the opposite side of a divided road separated by a median strip.

BILLABONG HIGH SCHOOL

Australian School Super Series Lawn Bowls: Billabong High student Sam Harrison travelled with his parents to Tweed Heads last term to represent the NSW Combined High Schools (CHS) side. Sam's team took out the gold for the individual team event, winning the game with his final bowl. He was also an integral part of the NSW team winning the Shield. Sam was named in the 2019 Australian Schools Merit Side; this is a huge achievement, particularly for someone Sam's age.

P&C News: A big thanks to all the parents, grandparents and friends of Billabong High School who helped run the Eastern Gate at the HMFD. This is a major fundraiser for the P&C and we appreciate the time you gave to make the three days so successful. Also thanks to our President, Rayne LeBusque, who stood in the sun for the 3 days selling raffle tickets. By all accounts it was well worth the effort. HMFD Fashion Parades: On Thursday the school received a certificate of appreciation from the Natural Fibre Fashion Awards for 20 years of supplying models for the fashion parades at the Henty Field Days.
